Fair housing opens doors. The work to promote equal access to housing, to encourage open communities, and end discrimination is ongoing. The Fair Housing Project (FHP) of NH Legal Assistance, a statewide non-profit law firm providing civil legal services to low-income New Hampshire residents, will be holding a training for area people to become involved in this work as fair housing testers.

Testers are individuals who are trained to act as prospective tenants seeking rental housing and to gather information on possible housing discrimination. Successful testers are committed to justice, detailed observers, good writers/typists, and punctual. Enclosed is a flyer that announces a tester training on Saturday, October 20th from 9:30 am – 12:30 pm at the Franklin Public Library located at 310 Central Street, Franklin, NH 03235. Please post it and pass it along, and ask interested people to call Liliana Neumann at 668-2900 extension 2214 right away for more information.

Being involved in the testing program is also a way to learn new skills, meet interesting people, and work on an exciting civil rights project. Testers receive a flat fee of $75 for the training once a practice test is completed, and $16/hr. afterwards. Testers are independent contractors, participate in 2-4 tests a year and are critical to ending housing discrimination.

Thank you for your help in informing people about this tester training opportunity. Please contact Liliana at 603-668-2900 x2214 to RSVP a seat and confirm attendance for this training session.

Please feel free to contact Liliana at the above numbers or at lneumann@nhla.org with any questions.

Sincerely,

Maria I. Eveleth
